

BE SCAM AWARE (191)

Wednesday, 10:30 – 12:00 (One-day Class, 3/20) in Room 30 Tuition $12

People who know about scams are much less likely to fall victim to them. Scammers attempt to contact you by U.S. mail, phone, text message, email, or messages on social media to obtain your personal information or money. Scammers frequently change their approach, trying new tactics and messaging to trick us. This class will cover many current scams. How to identify scam emails will be discussed, with many real examples.
